

- 16 -

ABSTRACT

An optical device which can significantly reduce thermal birefringence effect is provided. In the optical device, depolarization generated by thermally induced birefringence is reduced significantly without making any compensation by using a (110)-cut crystal. Depolarization can be reduced by more than one order in comparison with a (111)-cut crystal.